Thrive through regulatory and political change

No business operates free from the actions of government departments, agencies, and regulators. In today's uncertain political landscape, organizations must take an ever more agile and proactive approach to policy and regulation. Those who master change will thrive.

We combine political, business, technical, and legal intelligence to achieve the commercial result you need. When a new piece of legislation, policy decision, regulatory outcome, or enforcement priority has the potential to affect your organization, we engage early to shape regulation to your strategic advantage and remove unnecessary complexity. We anticipate what's next to drive your business forward.

Drive strategic growth through highly regulated transactions

Transactions are increasingly subject to regulatory scrutiny. A powerful combination of geopolitical volatility, heightened national security risk, and fierce competitive dynamics means that regulatory considerations now make or break many business-critical deals.

We see the big picture, identifying what's important to achieve your strategic vision. We smooth your path to success—tackling issues head-on. Whether a transaction triggers an antitrust review, political and policy due diligence, or raises data privacy concerns, trade or intellectual property issues, or requires national security clearances, we deliver advice that overcomes challenges and gets deals over the line.

Accelerate product launches and market entry

In an age of invention, regulation plays a significant role in shaping the trajectory of product launches and market entry. Cutting-edge technologies and new business models make for legal questions without simple answers—novel and interconnected challenges where regulation meets innovation.

We have a deeper understanding of commercial dynamics and legislative direction in highly regulated sectors. We anticipate approval and certification blockers before they cause delays. We understand your regulatory catalysts and build a plan to address them—whether it's consumer protection issues or antitrust concerns. We connect across practice areas such as intellectual property, litigation, or transactions, developing integrated and strategic solutions that accelerate your success.

Move goods, capital, and information across borders

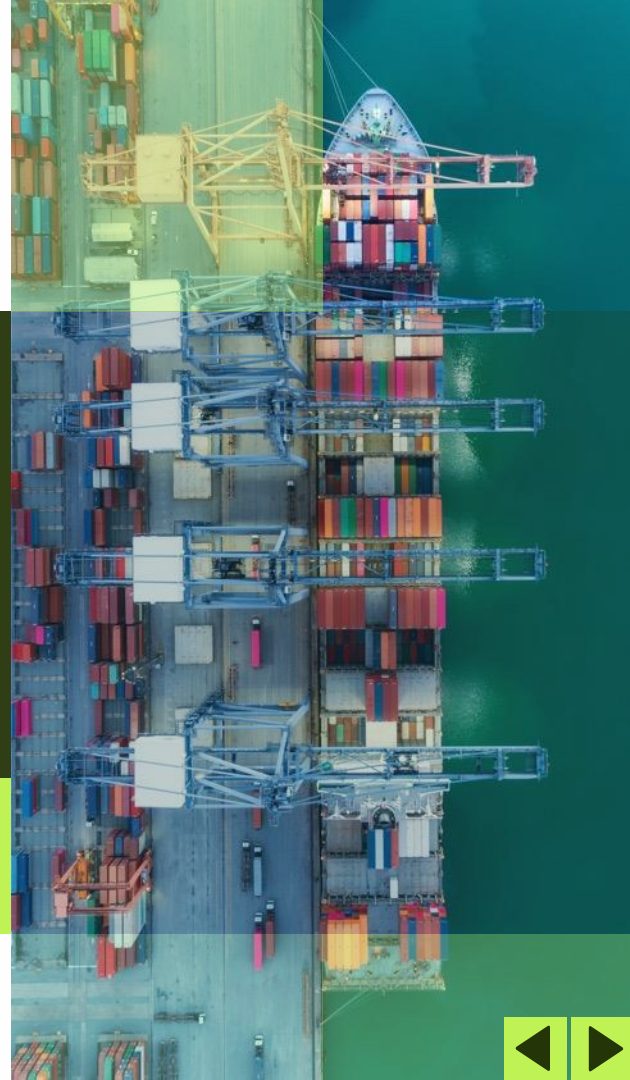

In today's changing environment, exchanging goods, capital, and information internationally is among the most complex and contentious tasks businesses undertake. Trade rules, tariffs, and sanctions are in constant flux, and national security and geopolitical risk has brought this into sharper focus.

Whether you need to obtain authorization to provide goods and services abroad, make disclosures to transfer sensitive technology, navigate complex FDI filings, or challenge judgements, we have the right lawyers in the right places. We develop comprehensive legal solutions that connect the dots between trade, data, and finance so you can do business globally.

Unlock the value of data

Data is a strategic asset that empowers businesses to stay ahead in rapidly evolving markets. From identifying new market segments and influencing customer behavior to building operational efficiency, data drives value when harnessed effectively. But as organizations collect and use more data, regulatory obligations and cybersecurity risks grow.

We handle cutting-edge, mission-critical, and sensitive issues in artificial intelligence, data, and cybersecurity, helping clients govern and protect data to maximize value. Our lawyers are changemakers and trailblazers, with unmatched experience advising at the cutting edge of law, policy, and technology. We are influential in key institutions and industries, and activate those connections to give you the edge.

Capitalize on market change

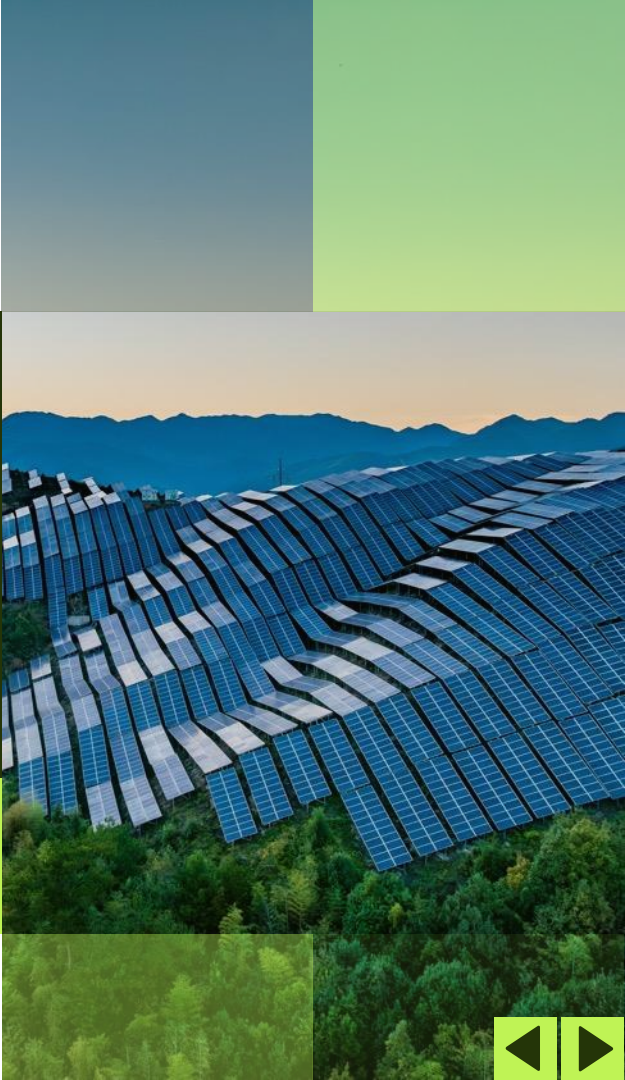

In today's unpredictable world, change is the only constant. From governments and policies to energy sources and digital health solutions, fundamental shifts are happening in every corner of the global economy. But where others see challenges, we find opportunities—recognizing big market shifts early, identifying risks and opportunities that these shifts present, and shaping the regulatory and policy environment to your advantage.

When there isn't a blueprint for what comes next, we help you meet uncertainty with agency. We are changemakers—gathering intelligence about the policy and political environment, using our expertise to develop robust legal and regulatory arguments, and advocating for those solutions in front of decision makers, stakeholders, and the courts. We deliver advice that helps you capitalize on change.

Emerge stronger from investigation and litigation

Regulatory compliance investigations, inspections, and enforcement action are key features of today's dynamic world. New regulations, trade sanctions, and treaties are coming into force. The changing political environment means shifting enforcement priorities and increasing parliamentary and congressional investigations into the private sector. Competition litigation is increasingly common as market players vie for advantage. As such, the potential for scrutiny and resulting disputes is high.

We work as an interdisciplinary team of regulatory and litigation to defend your hard-won advantage, appeal punitive decisions, and defend claims. Our deeper understanding of highly regulated sectors and relevant government stakeholders means you can effectively navigate investigations and regulatory disputes within and across industries and between private and government entities. We leverage our market-leading administrative law, appellate litigation, and Congressional investigations practices, to enable our clients to emerge stronger from challenge—engaging robustly with investigations, and finding opportunities to advance your objectives and build long-term resilience through litigation.

Antitrust and Competition

In today's fast-moving environment, companies in highly regulated industries must confront new antitrust challenges. When competitive advantage is hard won, rules are changing fast and scrutiny is uncompromising, we pave your way through uncertainty and risk. Whether you're closing strategic transactions, making international investments, bidding for government contracts, facing a regulatory investigation or litigation, our strategic insight makes the difference.

We understand the interplay between economy, industry, and law on a global scale, and harness these dynamics to your advantage. We know the challenges and opportunities of antitrust law inside and out, and use this insight to counsel clients and develop tailored and precise legal strategies. We are influential in key institutions and sectors worldwide, and activate those connections so you're always on the front foot.

Our capabilities:

- Defending and bringing competition litigation, including class actions, cartel actions, foreign subsidies cases and abuse of dominance actions.
- Navigating merger control and FDI clearances in strategic cross-border transactions.
- Advising private and government entities and trade associations on antitrust investigations and compliance infringements.
- Identifying antitrust risk in commercial contracts and distribution systems.
- Assisting various parties on competition risks relating to state aid and public procurement, including drafting complaints, navigating mergers and investments with companies receiving state aid, and addressing preferential treatment issues.

Commercial Contracts in Regulated Sectors

Commercial agreements — whether with business partners, suppliers, customers or as part of strategic alliances or joint ventures — are vital drivers of growth and innovation. However, they also introduce legal complexity, especially when operating across borders and in highly regulated industries. Businesses must navigate evolving regulatory landscapes, digital transformation, and rising expectations around compliance, sustainability, and data governance. Even routine agreements can carry significant risk, requiring a sophisticated, forward-looking approach. Standard approaches are often insufficient to address these challenges. Contracts must be carefully tailored to fulfil business goals and manage regulatory and economic exposure, as well as protect IP and other assets.

We help you stay ahead by anticipating legal, economic and commercial realities. With decades of experience advising on high-stakes commercial projects, we help clients master change and unlock new opportunities through strategic, future-ready contracts. Our team integrates regulatory insight, IP protection, and commercial acumen to support clients across the supply and product lifecycle. Whether it's structuring a licensing alliance, advising on cross-border supply chain risk, or guiding through the sale of a digital platform, we provide strategic, practical, business-driven advice.

Our capabilities:

- Advising on complex commercial contracts and licensing arrangements across sectors and jurisdictions, including IP, R&D, procurement, manufacturing, distribution, and digital transactions.
- Navigating national and international regulatory frameworks affecting supply chains, product compliance, online platforms, and market access—from environmental and chemicals to digital consumer protection.
- Developing and restructuring distribution and supply chain systems, including selective distribution, franchise models, and cross-border trade operations.
- Launching and optimizing e-commerce platforms and digital sales channels, including the legal design of web shops, consumer-facing policies, and online T&Cs.
- Managing risk and legal compliance through contract lifecycle services, including drafting, localization, contract management systems, and dispute resolution.
- Implementing AI and digital solutions into commercial operations and contracts, including smart contracts and contract digitization.
- Structuring and negotiating cross-border tech transactions, including M&A, venture investments, and licensing deals involving innovative or IP-rich assets.

Energy, Environment and Transportation

Business interests related to energy, environment, and transportation matters are uniquely exposed to disruption—from geopolitical volatility and national security risk, to major economic and regulatory shifts. Companies are adapting to the dynamic world, with new types of power generation, mobility modalities, and businesses entering the market.

We help innovators and market leaders on a global scale. With a deeper understanding of your markets and regulatory issues, we help anticipate the potential impact of macro trends on your business and leverage regulation for strategic advantage. Our changemakers have the experience to smooth your path to success—connecting to funding opportunities, unlocking regulated mergers and acquisitions, steering large-scale projects through interactions with administrative agencies, bringing innovative ideas to market, and navigating environmental regulation.

Our capabilities:

- Advising on multibillion dollar energy and transportation infrastructure project developments.
- Representing clients before relevant regulatory agencies globally, with an emphasis on safety, national security, and environment.
- Conducting due diligence and leveraging specialist knowledge to secure regulatory approvals for mergers and acquisitions.
- Covering complex rate administrative proceedings in natural gas, electricity, oil, nuclear, renewables, and petrochemicals.
- Investigations, litigation, and defense support.
- Advising on all aspects of environmental and nature conservation law, including waste and soil remediation, major incident response, and water.
